

2024

Queen's Nursing & Health Quality Research Review

Full-time faculty

21

Publications

132

Research-based graduate students

107

$5,214,496

In new PI & co-PI funding

$8,464,643

Collaborative research funding

Research Snapshots

Building an inclusive, healthier tomorrow globally

Opening conversations through the art of visual storytelling: Maternal mental health in Kenya, India, and Pakistan

Dr. Shahirose Sadrudin Premj, Sally Smith Chair in the School of Nursing, has led an innovative project that merges art and science.

Read more »

The key to better healthcare? Smarter staffing

An interprofessional QHS research study tackles healthcare staffing challenges, to strengthen Ontario's integrated care system.

Learn more »

Two decades of advancing knowledge: Celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Queen's JBI Centre of Excellence

Dr. Christina Godfrey, Director of the Centre, shares her insights on the Centre's journey over the last two decades.

See Interview »

A marathon without a finish line

Dr. Jacqueline Galica, Associate Professor at the School of Nursing, partners with a cancer patient to create a comprehensive guide for gynecological cancer survivors and their caregivers.

Read more »

Discover more innovative nursing and health quality research projects »

EXPLORE

In the Spotlight

From media interviews to expert presentations, our faculty and learners stole the research spotlight this year

New research reveals public health dollars spent on for-profit nursing agencies

A new study led by Dr. Joan Almost, Professor in the School of Nursing, revealed a significant rise in agency expenditures, along with a troubling absence of regulations and transparency regarding how these companies function. The project has had a great impact in the media.

Find out more about the project's broad media coverage »

Bridging research and practice to transform hospice care in Kingston

Through partnerships with Providence Care and Queen's Division of Palliative Care, Nurse Scientist Dr. Katie Goldie is supporting a model of hospice care driven by interprofessional collaboration and a commitment to compassionate, evidence-based innovation.

Read more »

Cinq à sept research talk: The journey to better mental health during pregnancy

Dr. Shahirose Sadrudin Premji, Professor and Sally Smith Chair in Nursing, is helping to understand the impact of mental health conditions during pregnancy and how to improve health outcomes for parents and their babies long after birth.

Learn more and watch the talk »

Intellectual or developmental disabilities linked to worse cancer survival

Dr. Alyson Mahar is working towards addressing inequitable health care delivery by advancing understudied areas of cancer care. In a recent study, Dr. Mahar's team found that people with intellectual or developmental disabilities are at higher risk of dying from breast, colorectal, and lung cancers compared to those without.

Read more »

Article of Influence: Prioritizing simulation facilitators' competencies for professional development using Q-methodology

Nursing graduate student Laura Killam and Associate Professor Marian Luctkar-Flude were authors in an article that has been selected as one of the Society for Simulation in Healthcare Articles of Influence for 2023-24.

Read the article »

Learn more about Queen's Nursing and Health Quality Research »

WEBSITE